EFP launches alumni project and invites online registration

EFP Alumni, a network based around the EFP’s accredited postgraduate programmes in periodontology has been launched. The EFP Alumni project, co-ordinated by Filippo Graziani, brings together graduates and teachers of these programmes. Special EFP Alumni events (including a session at EuroPerio9) are now being organised. The EFP invites anyone who qualifies for membership to register online at the EFP Alumni page in the Education section of the EFP website.

Full details of EuroPerio9 scientific programme are released

The EuroPerio9 organising committee has published the "second announcement" of the scientific programme for the congress, which takes place at the RAI Amsterdam centre from June 20 to June 23, 2018. Highlights include live surgery, a debate about the use of antibiotics, an interactive session on treatment scenarios, and the "nightmare session”.

Michèle Reners outlines vision for EuroPerio9

Michèle Reners, chair of the organising committee for EuroPerio9, says that the Amsterdam 2018 congress will be more interactive than ever, with a greater participation from women and young periodontal professionals, and with many innovations in the programme. “I think that the combination of the location, the scientific programme, and our communications plans will create a very interesting meeting that everyone can benefit from and experience in a good way,” she says.
New-look Perio Insight magazine puts spotlight on genetics and highlights latest periodontal research

The summer edition of Perio Insight magazine can now be downloaded from the EFP website. It offers an in-depth analysis of the role of genetics in periodontal disease, a report on a global call for action on periodontal diseases, and a round-up of recent research published in the EFP’s Journal of Clinical Periodontology.
