EuroPerio8: submit your abstract now!

Deadline for online submission of abstracts for EuroPerio8. Make sure you send yours by November 28! That is also the deadline for sending us your manuscript for the EFP Clinical Research Prize 2015 on Periodontology.

Submit your abstract now by clicking here and become part of the world’s leading conference in periodontology and implant dentistry.

---

European Workshop: Prevention

Seventy of the world’s leading periodontal researchers are currently taking part in the annual EFP-organised European Workshop in Periodontology. This year’s 11th intense systematic review focuses on ‘Effective prevention of periodontal and peri-implant diseases’.

For more information on this high-level workshop, sponsored by Johnson & Johnson and Procter & Gamble, click here

---

Perio People, the new EuroPerio8 blog

EuroPerio8 promotion moves up a gear this week with the launch of Perio People, a new EFP blog to bring you closer to the figures that make this event such a point of convergence in periodontology and dentistry. Lively concise articles, videos, and playlists will help you to get the most from EuroPerio8, London, and British music. Please click here to access Perio People.

Also new: visit our PerioPeople page in Twitter.

---

Leading periodontologist promotes the EFP Manifesto in the British Dental Journal

The EFP’s campaigning Manifesto on Perio and General Health was one of the top-ten most viewed articles in October in the 'British Dental Journal', flagship publication of the British Dental Association. Written by Iain Chapple (Professor of Periodontology, University of Birmingham) and Nairn Wilson (Professor of Dentistry, King’s College London Dental Institute), Manifesto for a paradigm shift: periodontal health for a better life highlights the EFP’s call to the dental profession to "engage in screening and providing preventive advice to patients who are at risk of common chronic diseases and conditions such as cardiovascular disease, diabetes and cancer". Sign the Manifesto now by clicking here

'Trench mouth' – a Great War periodontal disease

In World War I centenary year, we remember the tragic loss of millions, the songs, the poetry, and the trenches at the heart of this conflict. We might also remember Trench Mouth, a periodontal disease famous for its association with the attritional battles of the so-called Great War. Find out more here.