Dear president, dear delegate,

We are delighted to inform you that we're launching a new service for your society. You know that JCP Digest, our concise publication aimed at clinicians, is available since years ago to the EFP-affiliated societies and their individual members in seven languages. From now on, at the EFP we are providing your society with a co-branded version of every new issue of *JCP Digest specially laid-out for your country, with your society's logo together with EFP's.

From now on, you can consider JCP Digest as a publication not only of the EFP but also of your own society. We invite you to take ownership of JCP Digest and disseminate it as you see fit among your members, social media followers, and allies. Feel free to publish it on your society's website, newsletter, and social media accounts.

We will be regularly sending you the co-branded version of the latest JCP Digest issue available in all seven languages (Croatian, English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese, and Spanish). For now, please find attached *JCP Digest 95 in a PDF file ready for you to use. You will find it edited in the national language of your country, when that is possible, or otherwise in English. We'll be sharing all future JCP Digest issues with you as they are getting available.

We hope that this move encourages you and your society to circulate JCP Digest more than ever, and to present it as a joint publication of the EFP and your own society.

Warmest regards,
Bettina Dannewitz
Chair, EFP's Communication Committee
